

The Christmas Box Angel at Silver Springs Cemetery
Stow, Ohio
In Memory of the Children

A beautiful replica of the angel monument inspired by the book The Christmas Box was built at a new cemetery in Stow, Ohio. It was dedicated July 1, 2001. The Christmas Box became a best-selling book and television movie, both of which lovingly told of a mother's grief and eventual solace over the loss of her child.

The Christmas Box Angel was created by the author, Richard Paul Evans, and was first built in Salt Lake City. It has become a truly meaningful memorial to children throughout the world.

The Silver Springs Cemetery Children's Angel in Stow has become a peaceful place for grieving parents whose children have died, before or after birth, to mourn, heal, and remember their beloved children. It has also given the parents an opportunity to connect with one another and share their grief.

Memorial bricks have been placed around the angel statue. They are loving tributes from parents, grandparents, and other loved ones to the memory of a child and have become a permanent part of the Children's Memorial. Bricks will continue to be sold for $100.
